

The Adventures of Al and Mo...(aka Alison Paca and Mo Hair)

"Hello Al, turned a bit chilly. I suppose you feel more at home?"

"Not really Mo the cold gets to me I have been here so long. The wind is always chilly in Roberts Park."

"Talking of Roberts Park, have you heard? That nice Jamie Roberts is coming in April – I hope he brings my cousins from Kilnsey Crag."

"Well that's something to look forward to. Is it something to do with that there conversazione on 18 April?"

"Yes that's it – not sure why they have to go all Italian. It's world heritage weekend, they are also in the park on Sunday 19th."

"Yeh what's wrong with Peruvian or Turkish? Maybe UNESCO should use Esperanto."

"Anyway it does look like a good do – lots to see and do and it is free during the day – not like the ones in the 1880s – they cost a horn and a hoof!"

"I'm looking forward to listening to the Wurlitzer and I'll do the tour again. This time I might see the little folk who ring the bells and clash the symbols."

"Dear me Al -hit me with an ostrich- it's all done by wires, there aren't any little folk!"

"Don't go and spoil it all, Mo, a bit of mystery is a good thing. That's why I'm going to Eddie Lawler's show. He'll tell us what those lions are getting up to."

"First the bridge and now the trees are to go. The lions will feel much better when they can see across the road. They are looking forward to being lit up at night time. I hope it all works out..."

"Vigilance is keeping an eye on the traffic, Determination is organising meetings, War is contemplating civil disobedience. However I am sure Peace will prevail once they've laid the cobbles."

"What a year it's going to be! And that's without the hydro in my park!"

"Lots of disruption but I'm sure it will all turn out better for us. Meanwhile we have to plan what we do over the World Heritage Weekend, we don't want to miss anything."

To make sure you don't miss anything keep up-to-date on facebook and look out for leaflets. Tickets on sale soon for an evening of entertainment, including comedy/drama sketches about our past, present and future and dancing to the SULTANS OF SWING. Contact robmartin@phonecoop.coop © robmartin20150116